3 poll operators admit to cheating

MANILA, Philippines — Three poll operators have admitted to cheating in the recent local elections, a move that has sparked outrage among voters and officials.

The operators, who were part of a coalition to run for office, were caught in the act of manipulating the results of the polls. They were found to have altered the tally sheets and to have tampered with the ballots.

The admission came after a series of complaints from voters who claimed that the results of the polls were not fair. The operators had initially denied the allegations, but they eventually broke down under pressure from the courts and the public.

The case has raised questions about the integrity of the electoral process in the Philippines. It has also led to calls for stricter regulations to prevent such incidents from happening again.

The operators are now facing criminal charges and are being held in custody. The results of the polls have been annulled, and a new election is being scheduled for a later date.

Peza eyes ways to cut power cost in ecozones

Manila, Sept. 10 (PNA) — The Philippine Export Processing Zone Authority (Peza) is looking for ways to reduce the power cost in its ecozones, which is a major concern of investors. Peza officials said that the current power cost in the ecozones is around 10 to 12 cents per kilowatt-hour, which is higher than the 8 to 10 cents per kilowatt-hour in the rest of the country. They are currently negotiating with the power companies to get a better rate, but have not yet reached an agreement. Peza is also considering other options, such as installing solar panels or wind turbines, to generate power within the ecozones. The authority is also looking for ways to improve the power infrastructure in the ecozones, such as upgrading the power lines and substations. Peza is committed to providing a competitive and reliable power supply to its investors, as this is one of the key factors in attracting foreign investment to the ecozones.

Lowly catfish goes high-end

By Greg G. Brown

It's not the most glamorous of fish, but catfish is making a name for itself in the high-end restaurant market. The fish, which is often served as a main course, is becoming a favorite of chefs and diners alike. The fish is known for its firm texture and mild flavor, making it a versatile ingredient in many dishes.

It's a common sight: a woman in a white lab coat, her hair pulled back, standing in a line of people waiting for a medical procedure. She's not a doctor, but a patient. And she's not alone. In a study of 1,000 women, researchers found that 75 percent of women who had a hysterectomy in the past five years had a history of depression. The study, published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, found that women who had a hysterectomy were more likely to have a history of depression than those who had not. The researchers also found that women who had a hysterectomy were more likely to have a history of anxiety. The study suggests that women who are considering a hysterectomy should talk to their doctor about the risks of depression and anxiety.

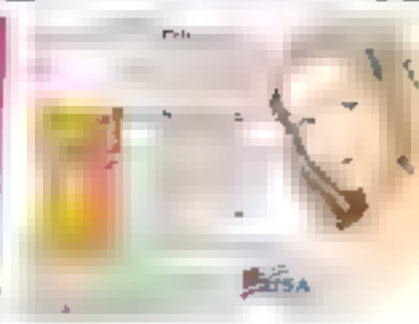

The study, which was conducted by researchers at the University of California, San Francisco, found that women who had a hysterectomy were more likely to have a history of depression than those who had not.
